Not over yet

Sierra Club Legal Defense Fund plans to continue battle

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Tuesday's denial for an injunction on ASRM construction at Stennis has taken none of the wind out of the opponents' sails.

"The suit is definitely not over," said Nathalie M. Walker, managing attorney for the Sierra Club Legal Defense Fund, Inc. and representative of the local Citizens for a Healthy Environment.

"His (Federal Judge Walter J. Gex III) decision to not grant the injunction is not a determination of the law suit," Walker added.

Gex heard arguments Tuesday morning for and against the filling of 69 acres of wetlands at the John C. Stennis Space Center by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) for the construction of the Advanced Solid Rocket Motor (ASRM) testing site.

Gex gave his decision to allow NASA to continue, at approximately 5 p.m. the same day.

NASA, supporting the position that they have proceeded in accordance with the law and in the best interest of the public, again has expressed commitment to keep the public informed of their ongoing efforts throughout the project.

The Legal Defense Fund claimed that NASA failed to prove that it considered other non-wetland sites for the location of the testing facility as required in permit guidelines.

"We need to see the reasons for the judge's decision," Walker stated. "He has determined the injunction is not appropriate and we need to know why."

"Hopefully we will receive a written opinion within the week."

It was reported at the Biloxi Federal Courthouse there was a crowd of about 60 people present during the hearing.

Public forum to address Hancock redistricting

BY JANET MCQUEEN

Some 500 registered voters are affected by redistricting in Hancock County earlier this year.

Only three precincts, all formerly in District 3, are involved—Diamondhead, Dedeaux and Standard. Redistricting was mandated by the outcome of the 1990 U. S. Census, according to Circuit Clerk Pamela Metzler.

Those voters will now cast ballots in District 5 at two new voting precincts, Diamondhead West and Hancock North Central.

"Those residents have many unanswered questions about where the lines are," said Metzler, whose office has fielded many telephone inquiries on redistricting.

The interest prompted Metzler and members of the Hancock County Election Commission to sponsor two public forums to answer questions and display a map outlining the new district borders. A public review of the new poll book will also be available.

Letters were mailed to 279 Diamondhead residents, with the balance of 221 sent to voters in the other two affected communities, notifying them of their transfer to the new district and precinct.

"It is not necessary to re-register. The automatic transferral was made on our computer rolls," said Metzler, who also enclosed a new voter card in each letter.

The names were taken from land rolls and Metzler is aware that voters who do not own their property will be overlooked. "If you live in Dia-

Western Sound open for shrimping June 28

Waters in Mississippi Sound west of the Gulfport Ship Channel will open for shrimping Friday, June 28, at 6 a.m.

Bureau of Marine Resources officials project that shrimp in the area will be of the minimum legal size of 68 to the pound by that date.

Scott Gordon, BMR shrimp program coordinator, said that fishermen should not expect big catches from the western Sound.

"Our sampling has shown very few shrimp in the area," Gordon said. "This is a result of a heavy flow of freshwater into the Sound from unusually heavy rains and high river levels in the spring."

Amtrak commuter service closer with Florida's bid

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Amtrak has received a commitment from Florida which may open the door to commuter train service along the Coast to Jacksonville, Fla.

Tri-state rail commission chairman, Bill McFarland reported rail service from New Orleans, Mobile and Jacksonville appears to be "well on its way to becoming a reality."

But according to Waveland businessman and Technical Systems Committee (TAC) chairman Delmer Wilcox, "Mississippi is holding up the show."

"As soon as we get the commitment from Mississippi to come up with the money, we can get it."

Senator Trent Lott, in a phone interview, explained his interpretation of the hold-up to be a confirmed price on what the states are to contribute as the one-time expenditure.

"At first the price was $160,000 and now it is around

A new church for Bayside

Volunteer labor helped building become a reality

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Sunday is opening day for the new Bayside Baptist Church.

This congregation of 50 members has been in existence for six years as a mission of the Bay St. Louis First Baptist Church.

In 1989, the original East Kemper Street buildings in Bayside suffered a theft, followed by a fire which left the church gutted.

Through the Gulf Coast Baptist Association, a loan was procured and seven lots on Hancock Drive were purchased.

A slab for the new church was poured and set by September.

The Bayside congregation experienced the meaning of fellowship when various members of the Gulf Coast Baptist Association would appear with tools in hand to help with the building.

An estimated 65 percent of the structural cost was saved through volunteer labor.

The new brick building allows three times the space of the original church and Sunday school trailer.

The new church contains one large room in which the ceiling is angled to peak together along the center. Shafts of light enter through elongated windows on either side, enhancing the airiness of the worship area.

Against the north wall, a platform holds a pulpit which fronts a recession into the baptismal pool.

A hallway leads south, away from the worship room. To the right and to the left of the hallway are small rooms designated for Sunday school classes, a nursery and a playroom for the smaller children.

There are the functional necessities of a kitchen, utility room and bathrooms.

Throughout the building there is the untouched spaciousness of a new house, waiting for the completeness of the family to move their possessions into place, thereby giving it the life and the personality of its occupants.

But this church—new and

REMEMBRANCE PROGRAM

We have moved the meeting place of this program to the Historical Society's Loblano House. The meetings will still be on Monday morning at 9:30.

Charles Gray has really been working on this project with several "old timers" and has gotten some great background on the Lakeshore area from Tuleter Oliver and Bud Ladner. They have pictures and letters that were very interesting.

Mr. Gray has been working with Pat Cucullu and others to make booklets of the "Remembrances." If you have an interesting story to tell, come to the meetings and get it on tape! (NOT FOR MEN)

NOT FOR MEN

Thursday, June 27 we will have Dr. Thad Carter speaking at the hospital at 10 a.m. Any man over 40 should attend. Don't wait until you get bad news, find out now what to look for.

After this meeting, our dates will change to Friday mornings at the hospital meeting room starting July 12. The programs will be interesting, so mark your calendar.

If you have been reading about how many senior citizens don't know about their eligibility for Medicaid, here is a chance to speak to them here at the center in Bay St. Louis.

Representatives come to the Conference Room the second Thursday morning of every month.

Medicaid will pay the Medicare premium and will eliminate the need for supplemental insurance. This would be a big savings to many of our low income persons.

If a single person has income of less than about $550, they should check and see if they are eligible. Married couples' level is about $740.

We will be closed July 4 and 5. Happy Holidays!

Colson benefit to be held Saturday

A benefit is being staged Saturday at the Hancock County Fairgrounds to help with medical expenses for Jeff Colson of Waveland.

Colson, a professional race horse jockey for eight years, suffered a broken neck on March 8, when the horse he was riding fell at the New Orleans Fairgrounds track.

Colson is presently at Lakeshore Hospital in Birmingham, Ala., where he is in therapy as a quadriplegic and reportedly showing some improvement.

Colson is the 36 years old son of Curtis P. Colson Sr. of Bay-side Park and Joanne Erskin Colson of Waveland. He is a graduate of Gulfview Elementary School and a 1972 graduate of Hancock North Central High School. He attended the University of Mississippi for three years.

During his career, he rode such favorites as Rooster Logan, Love Wins and Midnight Shadow.

$180,000," Lott stated. "We are trying to get a final confirmation on the price."

According to Wilcox, Louisiana and Alabama have made the commitment to spend the one-time expenditure for capital improvements within their states.

Amtrak has agreed to pay all operational costs.

With the additional commitment from Florida for $6.5 million for track improvements and station construction in Pensacola, Tallahassee and Jacksonville, Wilcox feels "it will put some pressure on Mississippi to join in."

Lott added it will take some assistance on the local levels to re-open the stations, but a projected date has been set for spring of next year.

Should the train service be activated, Mississippi Coastal stops would include Bay St. Louis, Gulfport or Biloxi and a site in Jackson County. Stops would be made three times a week.

PUT AN END TO THE THREAT OF TERMITES.

Some True/False Questions About Termites.

True or False? Termites can only attack a home if there is wood in direct contact with the ground.

FALSE. Termites can build mud tunnels many feet long to carry them across concrete, iron, treated wood, or any other material to reach the vulnerable wood in your home. Termites have been known to eat a wooden knob off the top of a thirty-foot-tall steel flagpole.

True or False? If you've never seen a termite swarm, you've got nothing to worry about.

FALSE. Most people with termite-infested homes have never seen a swarm. Termites swarm only once or twice a year, and only for a few hours. If you're not right there at the right time, you can easily miss it.

True or False? If you do see a termite swarm inside, it means your house is infested by wood-damaging termites.

FALSE. A swarm inside or outside a house should be a warning that termites are present in the soil beneath. It is possible that wood-eating workers have not yet invaded. Swarms will not eat wood, so there is no reason to fear them. Call for an immediate professional inspection, though, before workers become a problem.

True or False? Subterranean termites don't always live underground.

TRUE. Most subterranean termites build nests in the soil, and then tunnel into a home. But under certain moisture conditions, subterranean colonies can exist within the building under attack. To correctly determine where termites are, and to be sure you're getting the right protection, always call a trained professional.

True or False? Some types of construction are "termite-proof."

FALSE. Many types of shields and walls have been devised to prevent termites, but none of them has been 100% effective, and termites can find a way around them.

True or False? Termites don't attack homes built on slab-type construction.

FALSE. This kind of home is particularly vulnerable. Termites can enter through concrete, mortar, and brick. And once inside a slab-type home, they're almost impossible to detect until damage is discovered.

True or False? Termites can be found in new homes.

TRUE. It's not just in old or run-down buildings that termites are found. They've been discovered in new houses as early as four days after construction was completed.

What you don't know about termites can hurt you, but don't be frightened - be protected. Terminate termites with REDDITT PEST CONTROL - Your termite specialist - protecting homes in Hancock County for over 12 years. REDDITT, a name you can trust for all your pest control needs.

A big parade is scheduled down Highway 49 (vicinity of Pass Road) on July 4 starting at 3 p.m. going to the Rice Pavilion. There will be sky divers, fireworks at 9 p.m. and all types of celebrities.

Registration is free for this rodeo, and all participants have to do is pre-register for the numerous salt and freshwater categories. Registration forms are available from most boat dealers and fishing camps and will also be available at the headquarters at Jones Park at the head of Highway 49 and Highway 90.

There will be all types of entertainment including rides, good seafoods and refreshments.

Freshwater fish catches must be within Mississippi law limits and include bluegill, catfish, green trout, striped bass, shellcracker and white perch. There is a minimum on freshwater catfish at 2 lbs., perch 7 ozs. and white perch 10 ozs.

Salt water categories include amberjack, blue fish, blue marlin, bonita, black fish, barracuda, dolphin, flounder, gar, jack crevalle, lemon fish (cobia), black drum, shark, grouper, red snapper, redfish, sailfish, speckled trout, Spanish mackerel, king mackerel, tarpon, tune, white marlin, wahoo and spearfishing.

As you can see, there is a large variety of saltwater fishing categories. There are special rules which will apply to saltwater catches.

Elliott reports that on Saturday morning there will be a child's division at the rodeo for youngsters up to age 13, and it will be from daylight to noon.

Further information will be available at the rodeo on Saturday morning.

This year Hancock County will be represented by rodeo princesses Jennifer Mittie Lee, Bay St. Louis by Rachael Lynn Fillingame; and Waveland by Destin Rene Black. The three will compete this Saturday for the title of rodeo queen.

The Hancock County Historical Society is searching for a piece of wool processed at the Ulman Wool Mill located on Nicholson Avenue in Waveland around the turn of the century.

The Mill was famous for a black and white checkered pattern for blankets and scarves.

The commissary at the mill was later divided into four homes, of which three are still on Nicholson Avenue.

The late Jules Favre, a contractor and house mover of Jeff Davis, was reported to have used a hand saw to divide the building into the four residences. One was destroyed by Hurricane Camille.

The Historical Society is located at 108 Cue St. across from the Courthouse in the Kate Lobrano Cottage and is open on Monday and Thursday mornings. For further information call 467-8201.

The local Historical Society is still collecting photos and memorabilia from Hancock County and is in the process of logging vital information for all areas of county history.

State auditor's position should draw three Demos

The job of state Auditor has come open again as the occupant seeks to make it a stepping stone to the top. Three very different hopefuls, all Democrats, have come forward thus far seeking to win the slot.

On one hand you have a classic mild-mannered, soft-spoken, unpolitical type who has labored quietly and efficiently in state government for a dozen years.

Then on the other hand, you have a battle-scarred veteran of political wars who has never held public office but believes he has something different to bring to the job.

And on the outside, you have an exuberant young novice who holds something the others don't—a CPA license.

"I am not a politician. I like to think of myself as a person who will listen to people," says quiet Ryan Hood, who after spending 12 years as an assistant in the Attorney-General's office specializing in dealing with local officials feels he is ready to be state Auditor.

Hood, 39, was the first to jump into the race for the job being given up by State Auditor Pete Johnson. In the AG's office, he wrote 1,500 legal opinions on problems confronting local governments and has conducted dozens of seminars and training schools for local officials.

But Hood has also been on the get-tough end of dealing with many officials. He served 700 affidavits on fee-paid officials who failed to file their income reports to the Secretary of State. "Almost invariably they filed when they saw we were serious," Hood said.

Inescapably, when Hood's name is mentioned, it must be pointed out that his uncle is the wealthy industrialist and civic leader Warren Hood who for years has been a heavy contributor to gubernatorial candidates. Warren Hood, unsurprisingly, is his finance chairman.

Already, Hood has raised more than $116,000 and has spent more than half of it getting his name out around the state and setting up staff and headquarters organization.

His "Robin Hood" TV commercial, with him hitting a bulls-eye with a bow and arrow, grabbed some early attention and, according to Hood, was "worth every penny" of the $8,000 it cost to produce.

Whereas Hood lacks name recognition, his major opposition in the race is expected to come from Steve Patterson, the former chairman of the Mississippi Democratic Party, and 1988 Congressional candidate, who is better known around political circles.

Patterson had indicated weeks ago he was running, but his entry was in doubt until this week when he made his formal announcement at New Albany, his birthplace, and in Louisville, where he grew up.

Evidently Patterson, 39, now a Jackson investment banker, had to clear up some tax and financial difficulties before he could enter the race. Patterson openly admits he had to recently pay off an IRS tax lien, and satisfy a judgement on a note for which he was a co-signer.

"No one has lost a nickel on me," said Patterson, who is still carrying a $25,000 campaign debt from his unsuccessful bid for the 4th District Congressional seat in 1988, after paying off $50,000 out of his pocket.

"I don't have a rich uncle bankrolling me," declared Patterson, in a dig at Hood.

Patterson, who represented Paine Webber in 10 states as an investment banker prior to his Congressional race, afterwards launched his own firm dealing in county and municipal bond issues.

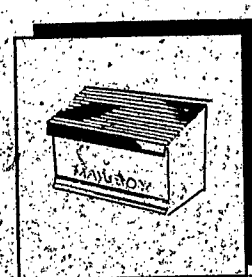

He can lend his expertise in public financing to help counties and cities better plan their fiscal policies and save money, Patterson said. "I think a state Auditor ought to be more than a watchdog... he should provide technical assistance to counties and cities."

Billy Morehead, a 28-year-old financial officer at Whitfield State Hospital, who formerly worked in the state Auditor's office, has also announced his bid for the Auditor post, but he hasn't given up his present job in the meantime.

He's the only one who is a CPA. Since the Auditor's office is "the largest audit and accounting firm in the state it should have a CPA at the head," Morehead maintains.

Hood, who has been to 56 counties already and picked up at least three newspaper endorsements, says his Hickman-Mashin poll shows he has drawn even with Patterson in name recognition. Patterson contends his Dick Morris poll gave him a 3 to 1 advantage over Hood.

There's still a long way to go before Sept. 17.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Waveland's former dog warden was best in state

To the Editor:

Our Mayor Stella "The Fair" Frilot has continued her assault on the care system for animals in our city. This time she has summarily fired our animal warden, Ed Abson. Apparently the only reason was that he was doing his job as it should be done and not as she thinks it should be done.

When we had an Animal Commission, we tried to see to it that Mr. Abson had the best equipment available and that he was afforded the opportunity to attend classes and seminars so that he was up-to-date on the latest knowledge on how to be a first-class animal warden.

In my opinion, he became one of the finest in the state. He was dedicated, hardworking and well trained.

Apparently these are not qualifications that count in Waveland, today.

It seems that what a city employee needs now is to be able to bow submissively to the mayor.

Finally, a word of advice to any city employee: keep your resume up to date. You'll probably need it soon.

Hospitalized veterans receive the best of care in Biloxi

To the Editor:

Much has been read and said, both positively and negatively, regarding patient care at the Veterans Administration hospitals nationwide.

Although I can only speak about the Biloxi VA Center from personal experience, I can say without reservation, health care delivery there is of the finest, highest quality.

The physician and nursing staffs are as professional, devoted, dedicated and caring as can be found anywhere. The care of long-term, terminally ill patients goes on daily, given by the unsung heroes in the nursing profession—rarely recognized.

Having been beside my late husband during 52 days of VA hospitalization, not only do I commend the excellent treatment he received as a patient, but also the attention, support and comfort given me and other members of our family.

Waveland officials should work together, not feud

To the Editor,

Thank you for your beautiful editorial in the Sunday, June 23 Echo. You couldn't have put it any better: The petty bickering has got to stop; it is making Waveland look like the big-top tent.

As far as Mayor Frilot goes, she is a wonderful person and is doing everything she can to make Waveland a place for us to be proud of.

We need business coming to Waveland, not staying out of it. She has only been in office a short time, and some people are blaming her for things that are not her fault.

She is trying to work with people, not against them. Yet, some people are trying to make names for themselves by knocking everything she does and things she hasn't done. Just because someone was born and raised here does not mean he or she has a right to knock someone who is really trying. Some of the aldermen could use some help with their political views.

Do they really want to help the people who voted for them, or are they making the voters sorry they did vote for them?

I am shocked at what has been going on. It is something you would expect to see and hear in a low-budget movie. I am not the only one who feels this way. One thing is for sure, the people with whom I have spoken are behind the mayor 100 percent. She was given a job to do, and she is trying to do it well.

If other officials would stand behind her instead of knocking her, Waveland would be better off.

Congratulations to the editor of the Sea Coast Echo for a wonderful article. Let's hope it does some good.

Congratulations to Mayor Stella Frilot. She is doing a good job. I am sorry she is being put through so much bickering.

Like all newcomers here, she is under more pressure than if she had been born here. I am one big, but I am a voter. She may not hear it, but I do. People are pulling for her. Keep up the good work.

Sincerely,
Judy Bergeron

Questions worth asking

A chief executive officer knows that the principal device for guiding a corporation is the budget.

All of the strategic planning, reorganization, personnel changes, memoranda, policy decisions and other initiatives to improve corporate performance are reinforced by action during the budget process.

Corporate funds are given to areas and programs the CEO has set as priorities. Corporate dollars are reduced or eliminated from those areas the CEO has given less or no priority at all.

Taking his vision for improving corporate performance and the budget to the board of directors is the final step for the corporate leader. The board's willingness to approve, change or deny the budget—and the CEO's priorities—will depend on the soundness of the CEO's plan.

Once a budget is approved by the board, locking in the full scope of corporate programs and operations for the long-term financial health of the corporation so that stockholders receive maximum value, circumstances can sometimes change the situation.

In such instances, the CEO has the authority to take action to meet those circumstances. Funds may be shifted at his discretion to best meet the changing circumstances while still meeting budget guidelines.

With the CEO's responsibility to meet those budget guidelines comes the authority to take action. In the world of business, the responsibility to get a job done is coupled with the necessary authority to do it.

Is there a lesson here... perhaps a model... for Mississippi's state government?

Is there a need for strategic planning, reorganization, personnel evaluation, and policy decisions as part of the budget process?

Is there a need to set priorities for governmental services?

Is there a need for cooperation, coordination, and even give-and-take between the state's chief executive officer—the Governor—and his board of directors—the Legislature?

These are questions worth the asking as the state begins a new year on July 1, still meshed in a budget crisis.

Prior to the hearing, members of Citizens for a Healthy Environment and other opponents protested outside of the courthouse displaying signs and banners equating ASRM with death.

The citizens group has repeatedly expressed a mistrust of the checks and balances NASA intends to implement in order to insure the safety of the area during a test firing.

When the ASRM is test fired, 350 tons of particulate matter, including microscopic aluminum and corrosive gases, is emitted, forming as plume which through intense heat rises at an accelerated speed until reaching a high enough atmospheric level where it can cool down and disperse.

The fear exists in the possibility that this plume may contact water as it rises, causing it to turn into a toxic rainfall.

NASA has time and again reiterated its promise to monitor weather to safeguard against such an occurrence.

As of Wednesday morning contractor W.C. Fore mobilized equipment, reported NASA officials. "The contractor has begun cutting, digging temporary drainage ditches, some excavation and fill-work."

Banks contribute to Children's Hospital

GulfNet board member Gray Wiggers of Trustmark National Bank presented a $12,500 check to hostess Judy Ramey during the recent Children's Miracle Network Telethon in Jackson.

The donation was made possible in part through the cooperation of GulfNet member banks statewide, including Merchants Bank and Trust, Peoples Federal Savings, Hancock Bank, The Peoples Bank and Eastover Bank for Savings in Bay St. Louis.

GulfNet's contribution was part of $292,299 raised for UMC's Children's Hospital, the only facility in Mississippi devoted exclusively to the care of sick and injured children.

GulfNet, the Central South's largest cash machine network, links the cash machines of more than 200 banks. Since April, the network has made a donation to the Children's Miracle Network each time someone used an ATM from a bank other than his or her own.

Pass Library offers 100 young artists a "hands on" experience

Flourescent colors covered the palms of approximately 100 pre-schoolers Tuesday morning at the Pass Christian Library. Librarian Kay Cavode reported library patrons unaware of the children's program registered "shock" upon entering the facility, which was literally wall-to-wall with paint-smudged tots. Over and over, tiny handprints were applied to white cotton T-shirts, making each an original creation. Cavode reported a large local retailer was "sold out of white T-shirts."

Clockwise from upper right, library volunteer Pam Carlin assists Kimberly Barnes and Morgan Ladner of Tiny Tots Day Care in Delisle; Children's Librarian Sally James helps Greta Miller; Waveland pre-schoolers Brad and Courtney Bissonette make their marks; Alexis Boxx of Bay St. Louis chooses neon pink; and librarian Kay Cavode assists Britanny Adam with her recycling contribution. Open air market

The Hancock County Historical Society and Main Street merchants sponsored their first open air market Saturday. Proceeds from booth rentals will benefit the Bay St. Louis Main Street Program. Undersize speckled trout catch eliminated

The Commission on Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks voted Monday to eliminate the five undersize fish allowance for spotted sea trout caught by recreational fishermen.

The commission also voted to eliminate the three-day possession limit for speckled trout.

The action went into effect July 25.

Presently, recreational fishermen may take 25 speckled trout per day with a minimum length of 14 inches. A three-day possession limit allows fishermen to have up to 75 fish in their possession.

But Mississippi is the only state which allows fishermen to take five undersize speckled trout per day to be included with their catch totals.

The commission took the action on the proposal of the BMR staff after creel surveys, done over the last three years, show that recreational fishermen are catching smaller and fewer speckled trout.

BMR officials made the proposal after conducting two public hearings—one in Bay St. Louis, another in Biloxi.

"The surveys show clearly that, on the average, 60 percent of all the spotted sea trout caught in Mississippi are undersized," said Tom Van Devender, BMR chief of saltwater fisheries.

Van Devender said that coral surveys compared with commercial landings information, show that recreational fishermen take two to three times more speckled trout than commercial fishermen.

Commercial fishermen are not allowed to take any undersize fish.

"The limit is set at 14 inches for a reason," Van Devender said. "At 14 inches, a speckled trout has had the opportunity to spawn at least once. If smaller fish are allowed to be taken, it's counterproductive to the limit, and it damages the population. We'd like to see what changes in the population will occur after the elimination of the undersize allowance is in effect for a year or so."

It is a common assumption that once a fish is hooked it has little chance of survival. But Mike Buchanan, BMR fisheries biologist, says that a survey conducted in Texas showed that more than 60 percent of speckled trout hooked will survive if they are returned to the water properly.

Van Devender said that three proposals aimed at protecting the speckled trout population were under consideration, but the elimination of the undersize allowance posed the least burden on fishermen.

Van Devender said the proposal to eliminate the three-day possession limit was not part of the original proposal, but was brought up by recreational fishermen at both public hearings.

Reading with Ronald

Bay library welcomes Ronald McDonald and friends Wednesday

Ronald McDonald

Ronald McDonald loves to read! And he's sharing his love of reading with kids in his new show, "Bookin' with Ronald McDonald."

The 45-minute program will be presented at the City-County Public Library in Bay St. Louis on Wednesday, July 3 at 2 p.m. The presentation is part of the Hancock County Library System's 1991 summer reading program, "Sizzling Summer Celebration."

The Ronald McDonald show will take the place of the Waveland and Kiln programs this week. Children participating in the summer reading programs at those libraries are reminded to come to the City-County Library for their program.

Ronald will take children on an exciting reading adventure that demonstrates the importance of knowing how to read, spell and use the dictionary. "Bookin'" takes place in the "McLibrary," a fun-filled animated set that serves as a backdrop for Ronald's reading lessons.

Joining Ronald are his friends, "Stogie the Bookworm" and "D-I-C-T-I-O-N-A-R-Y." Both characters interact with Ronald and his young friends to bring home messages about the importance of learning to read. True to Ronald McDonald shows, there's plenty of magic, games and fun to boot.

The show is a goal of the Greater New Orleans McDonald's owners/operators, who realize the importance of an elementary level literacy focus. The script was developed in collaboration with the advisory board of Instructor Magazine, the leading publication for elementary educators.

Further information on the program is available by contacting Prima Wusnick at the City-County Library at 467-5282; Karen Peoples, Waveland Library, 467-9240; or Sandra Lader, Kiln Library, 255-1724.

Illustrations by Edgar Parker on exhibit at Coast museum

The reality of an illustrator's life deals almost completely with fantasy. For Edgar Parker, that pervading mix of reality and fantasy was to follow him throughout his childhood and later to serve as a powerful tool in molding his career in children's literature, indelibly linking illustrations with the world of fine art.

Born in Meridian, Parker (1925-1982) authored and illustrated numerous children's books, establishing for himself an unequalled reputation for his black and white illustrations. Approximately 50 of those original illustrations will be on display at the Mississippi Museum of Art/Gulf Coast's newest exhibit, "Edgar Parker: Fantasy and Reality."

Complementing this exhibit will be two other new exhibits, the "5th Annual Art Wave Juried Exhibit" and "The Parchman Prison Series: Photographs by Robert Hubbard."

Though much of Parker's work was done in color, critics agree it would never equal his talents for black and white. In 1959 Parker combined his expertise in black and white illustration with his appetite for literature and published his first book at the age of 34.

He was totally involved with his books, from writing and illustrating to dealing with editors. Between the years of 1959 and 1969, Parker was to write and illustrate seven children's books.

Any examination of Parker's drawing techniques must center around his unique combination of ink and graphite. A subtle blending of the two media makes it difficult to distinguish where one leaves off and the other begins. By employing this method, Parker creates rich surface textures and density as well as a delicate surface of pattern and detail.

Another technique key to Parker's work was his use of the paper surface as color. By allowing the paper to show through in some areas of his drawings, the untreated area become its own design. The works take on an added dimension from the strictly ink and graphite contributions.

"Edgar Parker: Fantasy and Reality" will be on exhibit at the Mississippi Museum of Art/Gulf Coast through Aug. 25. The MMA/Gulf Coast is located in the Biloxi Cultural Center at 136 George E. Ohr Street and is open to the public free of charge Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday, 1-5 p.m.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katie McGuire Caire

There's something about cooking outdoors, sniffing those wonderful aromas all the while, that makes everything taste more delectable, from hamburgers to haute cuisine.

With the big Fourth of July weekend starting next Thursday, you may be sure that many a chef—and would-be-chef—will be working the barbecue pit or smoker or grill, or even the little old hibachi or disposable grill overtime, as all and sundry enjoy summer's star holiday along the beach or on the boat or in the back yard or perhaps inside in the air-conditioning while the chefs toil outside!

'Tis said that the favorite choice of America for the barbecue or grill is steak, with chicken a close second, although more and more cooks are turning to seafoods for the grill. Well, if you choose to stick to steak, you needn't mortgage the old homestead or even a piece of it for such delectables as porterhouse or sirloin, although those are fine, of course!

before adding the marinade. The "dry rub" method as it's called, is especially good when the choice is chicken, as chicken doesn't seem to take up the seasonings as deeply as beef, and rubbing them in well helps. This dry rub is also good with pork ribs and chops and such. Or, if you prefer, just mix your seasonings together and add to the marinade.

When I'm grilling a top round or blade chuck steak, I like to score the steak, rub it well all over with a mixture of freshly ground black pepper, a bit of salt, a couple chopped garlic cloves and a sprinkling, say a half teaspoon, of thyme, before placing it in a shallow glass dish to marinate in a little vinegar and oil. Some cooks prefer using two or three tablespoons of red wine vinegar without any oil. Here's:

MARINATED STEAK

For a 1½ to 2-pound top round or chuck steak, you'll need 2 or 3 garlic cloves and, say, approximately a half teaspoon each of pepper, salt and thyme. Some chefs prefer to chop the garlic and salt together into a paste, rub this all over both sides of the steak, then sprinkle the meat with pepper and thyme before marinating.

At any rate, when your fire's ready, remove the steak from the marinade and grill over medium coals several minutes on each side for medium-rare, basting with the remaining marinade as you go. And, of course, don't slice that steak until it's been standing for 5 minutes. (5 to 6 servings)

Local 'hams' on air

McLeod Park the site of Amateur Radio Club's annual Field Day

BY T. H. (DOC) TOUPS
When confronted by technical experts who expound on subjects which I have no hope of understanding, I've developed a very effective technique: I nod sagely and knit my eyebrows ever so slightly.

The hoped-for effect is to imply that I completely understand everything that they are saying, but have found some crucial flaw that I am too polite to mention publicly.

Even when it doesn't work, it allows me to retain a little more self respect than I would by staring blankly and mumbling "uh-huh."

When our editor, Janet McQueen, informed me that I would be covering The Pearl River County Amateur Radio Club's annual Field

Day, I practiced knitting my eyebrows extra hard.

Within seconds of meeting Fred Joy, vice-president of the club, I realized no eyebrow knitting would be necessary. The retired federal employee is a dynamo of energy and something of a one-man show; he told newspaper jokes, radio jokes and tried to plug his radio head set into the barbeque pit before uttering his first technical term. Even then he tried to convince me that he'd heard it from some guy named Guglielmo Marconi...

The radio enthusiasts, better known as "hams," had gathered in McLeod Park in Hancock County for the weekend of June 22 and 23. Their Field Day is part of a national event, always held in June, in which the radio operators simulate catastrophic disaster conditions and the important communications role they would assume.

On the Gulf Coast, an obvious disaster situation would be a hurricane, though other communities rely on their hams for communication in different types of emergencies.

During the 1989 San Francisco earthquake, amateur radio operators played an important role in maintaining contact with the outside world.

An element of competition is introduced to the event as the hams hold a contest to see which club can make the most contacts. Though the Pearl River County Amateur Radio Club is relatively small, they have the distinction of frequently making more contacts than much larger clubs.

Though not an element of competition in the event, club members mentioned that they had been talking to stations as far away as Puerto Rico over the weekend.

The enthusiasts engage in both plain voice and morse code transmission, and their equipment ranges from (relatively) inexpensive and basic to ultra sophisticated, computer-controlled gear.

The club is actively soliciting new members, and Joy stressed that prospective recruits should not be frightened off by fear of technical complexity. Their membership takes pride in helping entry-level beginners and answering any questions they can.

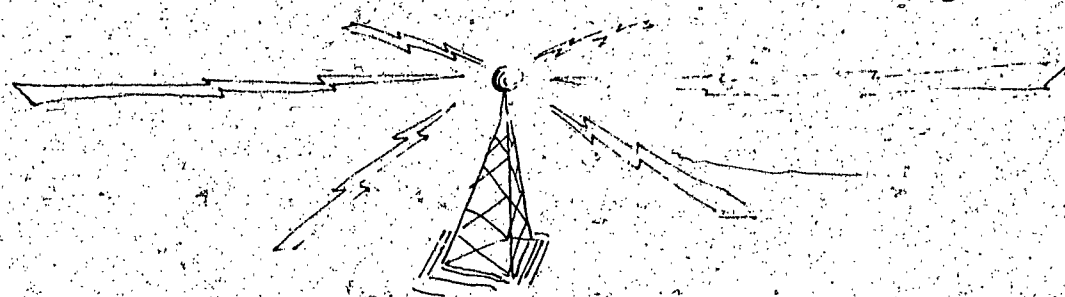

Outside of technical considerations, Joy explained that his club enjoyed social and recreational activities, and many members enjoyed the opportunity to use their radios to speak to people in other countries.

There are no long distance charges in amateur radio!

Joy invited any interested parties to contact him at (504) 863-2503 or write Fred Joy, 39377 Oak Street, Pearl River, LA 70452.

The pavilion where the club held its event in McLeod Park is available to other groups, according to park officer Linda Curet.

The daily rental fee is $35. Contact the McLeod office at 467-1894.

Finding the answers to lawn care questions

By Dr. Milo Burnham
Horticulturist
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

Crabgrass has shown its ugly face in my lawn. I knew it was hiding and waiting for the chickweed and henbit to fade out so it could take over, and now it's on the move.

Crabgrass seeds started germinating several weeks ago with the first warm days of spring. As in some past years, the preemergence herbicide didn't get put out.

It's not a lack of lawn care information available, but rather the rainy weather that has kept us out of our yards.

For information on lawns, the revised publication, "Establish and Manage Your Home Lawn" popularly called the Turf Tabloid, is available in county extension offices.

In addition, Dr. John Byrd, extension agronomist, has written a publication, "Weed Control in Home Lawns." It is also available in county extension offices.

Look to this publication to find recommended chemicals for controlling major lawn weeds, and particularly for summer, recommendations for controlling crabgrass in bermuda grass, or other types of lawn grass.

With certain combinations of a particular lawn grass and a particular weed, however, the choice of materials may be slim or non-existent for postemergence control.

A preemergence herbicide applied now will prevent more crabgrass seeds from germinating but won't control existing crabgrass. If you plan on planting grass seed this summer, hold off on the preemergence herbicides.

One of the most valuable tables in this publication is a list of the various chemicals for weed control along with their trade names. This can be of tremendous help when faced with a wide variety of materials on the store shelf.

Another timely lawn grass publication also available at the county extension office is, "Control Lawn Insects" by Dr. J. Pat Harris, extension entomologist.

Lawns have had it pretty hard so far this year, and there is no reason to expect the insects are going to go easy on them.

Fire ant mounds are popping up all over the place, and chinch bugs are probably cut there, even if you haven't seen them.

Pat's publication helps identify problem insects in the lawn and gives the recommended materials and rates for controlling lawn damaging insects.

Much of the information on weed and insect control is included in the Turf Tabloid, where you will also find information on lawn grass diseases and their control.

Gray leaf spot is already evident on St. Augustine grass, and left unchecked will take out your whole lawn in the hot, wet weather we are having. Some other diseases that can cause problems are brown patch, dollar spot and melting out.

lead to serious grass damage.

Try to mow lawns when the grass is dry to prevent damage to the lawn and to prevent clogging the mower with wet grass. If the grass is excessively tall, set the mower at its highest setting for the first cutting.

Weather permitting, give the clippings a day to dry if they aren't bagged or raked,

*In Mississippi

set the mower at a lower setting and cut the grass again.

Lower the mower with each cutting until the grass is at its desired height. Lawn grasses have been sufficiently stressed this year, so let's not stress them even further by removing 75 percent or more of the leaf area in one cutting.

Pass Christian School System employees honored

The Pass Christian Public School District recently hosted an awards program.

Special recognition was given to Ronnie Massey, whose term recently expired on the school board. Board chairman Evelyn Webb, and Superintendent LeRoy Lizana presented Massey with a resolution, plaque, picture and gavel for his work while serving on the school board.

Certificates of appreciation and service pins were presented to all employees with five-year increments of service.

Some 124 employees were recognized for these years of service ranging from five to 30 years.

The presentations were followed by a skit by the school bus drivers on discipline. The drivers presented transportation supervisor Robert White with a plaque thanking him for his efforts.

Bus driver safety awards were presented by Robert White to the bus drivers who had not had a reportable accident this year.

The School Bus Road-E-O winners were announced and presented with trophies. First place was Ausker Dedeaux; runner-up was Sandra Dubuisson. These two drivers, winners from the local Road-E-O, will compete in Jackson on June 14 for the state Road-E-O title.

Tough Grass.

In this area, we grow a lot of tough grass. Wide-leaf grasses, like St. Augustine and Bermuda, are difficult to mow and difficult to bag. But Wheel Horse tractors are built to take it. Even the smallest Wheel Horse tractors have the weight, horsepower and bagging capability to handle tough grass.

New Wheel-Horse Super Bagger mowers feature high-lift blades and vacuum action to pull grass up for clean, even cuts and superior bagging. When you team them up with Wheel Horse Power, you've got what it takes to handle any kind of grass—quickly and easily.

Visit us soon to see the complete line of rugged, dependable Wheel Horse tractors and ask to see our new Super Bagger mowers. Cut your tough grass down to size.

Watson selected Young Referee of the Year

Richard Watson, 16, of Waveland, has been selected as the United States Youth Soccer Association (USYSA) Young Referee of the Year. USYSA recognizes that an important element in preparation for the future of soccer in the United States is the development of referees.

For the second year USYSA has presented the Young Referee of the Year award to a boy and a girl under the age of 19 registered with the United States Soccer Federation based on years of officiating, level of games, ability, character, identification as a role model for younger children, relationship with players and adults in the program and potential for excellence as an adult soccer referee.

by FIFA referee Al Kleinaitis and Region III clinician Don Wilbur.

Over the years, Watson, has refereed for several local organizations, the State Division League and worked at the Mississippi Youth Soccer Association (MYSA) Southern District Tournaments, State Recreational and Premier Tournaments, the fall festival, the Autumn Classic and the Turkey Shoot State Division Tournament. In July, 1990, he officiated at the Russian match at William Carey College.

Nominated in May, 1990, by Bernard Tusa, then president of Bay Area Youth Soccer, Watson was selected as Southern District Young Referee by a committee of referees.

MLYSA selected him as Mississippi Youth Soccer Association Boys Young Referee from the winners of the districts at the annual meeting in Jackson during the summer of 1990. As the state winner, Watson will be presented the USYSA certificate and Young Referee of the Year pin in honor of his achievement.

Andrew Stone, director of Region III, announced Watson's selection as Region III Boys Young Referee from among the Region III states (Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana, Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Oklahoma, North Texas, South Texas, Tennessee and Mississippi).

As Region III Young Referee, Watson will be a guest of the region at the regional tournament in Memphis, Tenn. in June. He will be housed at the referee hotel and presented a plaque with the USYSA logo at the Parade of Teams.

Chosen as National Young Referee of the Year from among the four regions of USYSA, he and his mother, Roselin Watson, will attend the National Youth Challenge Cup Competition in Omaha, Neb. as guests of USYSA. They will be housed in the referee hotel, and they have been invited to meet and attend functions with the referee team.

Richard Watson

Watson, a tenth grade soccer student at Bay High School, is a two-year soccer letterman. He has played soccer for 11 years and is currently a member of South Mississippi's Coke United States Division team.

After working as a club linesman for two years, he received his referee license in 1988. He has attended advanced clinics

MILITARY MENTIONS

ENSIGN COX

Ensign Billy Cox of Bay St. Louis remains on duty on the USS McInerney (FFC-8) in the Persian Gulf. The ship, which has been in the Persian Gulf since January, is providing essential escort services to supply vessels bringing food and medicine to war ravaged Kuwait.

In recent operations, the ship was responsible for the discov- ery and destruction of several Iraqi free-floating mines.

McInerney was recently rewarded for these endeavors by being selected as the U.S. representative in a formation of multi-national mine and escort vessels parading up the swept channel to the northernmost commercial port in Kuwait, Ash Shuwaikh, to assemble and be recognized for the tremendous effort put forth by all hands.

The ceremony included a fly- by of several types and nation- alities of mine-hunting and armed helicopters. It was a symbolic example of the conti- nuing bond between the multi- national forces in the area.

Ensign Cox is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jake Jacob of Bay St. Louis. He is a 1985 graduate of St. Stanislaus and received a BS in physics from Tulane Uni- versity in 1989. The USS McInerney is expected to return to its homeport in Mayport, Fla. on or about July 1.

The image is a high-contrast, black and white photograph. It depicts a dense, textured surface, possibly a wall or a large piece of paper, with a dark, irregular border at the bottom. The texture is composed of numerous small, dark, irregular shapes, giving it a grainy, almost abstract appearance. The lighting is very bright, causing some areas to appear washed out, while others are in deep shadow. The overall effect is one of intense contrast and texture.
